

LOW'S ACTION
CREATES PANIC
IN THE POLICE

In Ordering Charges to Be Preferred Against Officials He Snubs Com. Partridge.

ONE QUITS UNDER FIRE.

Sergeant Brady Gets Out Before He Can Be Tried—Batch of Roundsmen Appointed, and a Devery Man 'Skipped'

There were all sorts of trouble predicted at Police Headquarters today when the full import of Mayor Low's charges against several of the officials in the Department was understood.

The general impression was that the Mayor had grown tired of the dilatory methods of Commissioner Partridge and had resolved upon quick action in connection with the charges arising out of the riots at the funeral of Rabbi Joseph.

In ordering the preparation and preferment of these charges the Mayor, it is held, gave a direct snub to the Commissioner.

Commissioner at the City Hall.

Mr. Partridge evidently felt hurt at the attention, for he only remained a few minutes at Headquarters, after which he hurriedly left for the City Hall to see the Mayor. He evidently did not know that the Mayor was to leave for Gettysburg at 10 o'clock to-day, where he is to attend the dedication of the statue to Gen. Slocum. The Commissioner held a brief conference with Secretary Reynolds.

"Not the slightest mention was made of resignation," said Mr. Reynolds later, "nor was the Commissioner angry over the Mayor's letter. He had instructed the Corporation Counsel to prepare charges against Inspector Cross, Capt. Herlihy, Capt. Albertson and Sgt. Brady as the result of the special commission's report on the east side riots. "What was the purpose of his visit?" was asked.

"That I cannot reveal," said the Secretary.

Back to His Duties.

The Commissioner returned to Police Headquarters, where he resumed his duties. He said his visit to the Mayor's office did not have any significance.

"There has been a great deal made out of nothing," he said. "He will leave for Gettysburg to-night."

The first development of a shake-up was a hurried dash made by Sgt. Brady, one of the accused officials, for Police Headquarters, where he made application to be retired. He said he had read of the instructions of the Mayor to put him on trial, and as he had served thirty-one years he thought it best to retire before he could be tried and dismissed. In that way he will save a pension.

Had to Let Brady Go.

After a conference with the Corporation Counsel Commissioner Partridge accepted the application of Brady and placed his name upon the retired list. He will draw half-pay from the Pension Fund and escape running the gamut of a trial for dereliction of duty at the funeral of Rabbi Joseph.

Commissioner Partridge said: "There was no other alternative for me. I was forced to accept the sergeant's resignation, there being no charges filed against him before me. My wishes in the matter do not count, as Sgt. Brady has taken advantage of a technicality and retired under fire."

PARTRIDGE BARS
DEVERY'S OWN MAN.

In promoting thirty patrolmen to the rank of roundsmen to-day Commissioner Partridge departed from his usual rule of following rigidly the list sent to him by the Civil-Service Commission in but one case.

He deliberately skipped Patrolman Michael Dempsey, who was seventeenth on the list.

Dempsey was regarded at Headquarters during Devery's time as the "right bower" of the Chief, and during the last days of Col. Murphy's regime was promoted to the rank of detective-sergeant.

Asked why he had skipped Dempsey, Commissioner Partridge said:

"I am not at all pleased with Patrolman Dempsey's record. He was a roundsman once, but was reduced to the rank of patrolman when the law allowed such reductions without a trial."

Three Arrests a Year.

"He was made a detective-sergeant, which position he occupied for about a year and during that time he made a record which, to say the least, was not at all brilliant. During that time he made three arrests."

"If further and that he was, for a long time on Devery's staff, and

LIEUT. PEARY SAFELY BACK
FROM PERILS OF FAR NORTH.PEARY STOPPED
BY POLAR PACK

Explorer Was Within Six Degrees of the North Pole When Ice Halted Him.

SHIP IS SAFELY BACK.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 18.—The Peary Arctic expedition steamer Windward entered the harbor here at 8.15 o'clock to-day.

The Windward is returning from the Arctic regions, and besides Lieut. Robert Peary and party has on board Dr. Diederick, the New Jersey physician, who left the Peary expedition and spent the winter at the Esquimaux.

Mrs. Peary and her little daughter, who sailed on the Windward to meet the long-absent explorer in the far North, were well.

Lieut. Peary did not reach the pole, but penetrated to 84.17 north latitude, which is nearly a degree further north than he has ever before reached. At that point Lieut. Peary was something more than 400 miles from the pole.

In his report to the Peary Arctic Club Lieut. Peary makes no mention of his quarrel with Dr. Diederick or of the presence of the latter on the Windward. This report describes the explorer's efforts to reach the pole and the scientific results of the expedition, which Lieut. Peary declares were considerably better than those of the last year.

Several Esquimaux Died.

"Left Erik Harbor, on the Ellesmere coast, Aug. 23, 1901. The Peary expedition left for the North Pole, leaving Erik Harbor Sept. 16, crossing Roose Bay, partly by sledge and partly by boat, then walking across Bedford Fm. About a week later my companions began to fall sick, not one escaping. By Nov. 19 six adults and one child were dead, nearly all the others very weak but out of danger."

"April 1, 1902, started northward over the Polar Sea with Kossuth, four Esquimaux and six sledges. Old flocks, covered deep with snow and intersected with rubble ridges and lanes of young ice, were encountered from the moment we left the ice foot."

"It was the same kind of travelling, except the lanes of young ice, as was found by the English expedition of 1876. After six marches over open leads, flocks and ice encountered. Two natives were sent back. As we advanced the flocks became smaller, the pressure more and more oppressive, and the open leads more frequent."

Halted at 84.17 North Latitude.

"Each day's march was more perilous and our general course was deflected west by the character of the ice."

Finally at 84.17 N. Lat., north-west of Hecla, the polar pack became impracticable and further efforts to advance were given up."

"New leads and pressure ridges with foggy rather made our return in some respects more trying than the advance. Hecla was regained April 23, and Gangor, May 2. Leaving Gangor, May 4, the Sabine was reached on May 15. A few days later went north as far as Cape Leach. Several days were the survey of Bobbit Bay, returning June 1. A proposed trip across Ellesmere land and back to Cape Leach was prevented by open water in Buchanan Bay."

The ice broke up earlier than in 1901, and further advance was blocked almost continuously."

Windward Out Just in Time.

"The Windward bore her way through the ice and entered the harbor the morning of Aug. 5, and got out fifteen minutes to spare before the harbor was closed by the ice. Forcing our way across Smith Sound, my Esquimaux with their belongings were landed in Umanak Gulf. Several days were devoted to hunting walrus. Then the Windward started south, reaching and leaving Cape York the afternoon of Aug. 18."

"Equipment and personnel were satisfactory and further advance was blocked by insuperable natural conditions. The Windward has on board the instruments, chronometer and Arctic library abandoned by the Greely expedition and numerous specimens of natural history, bear, musk-ox, reindeer and walrus skins."

"The skeleton of a two-horned narwhal, a rare Arctic specimen, also living specimens of musk-ox, walrus, Arctic hare and Esquimaux dogs are on board. Peary will start for New York to-morrow and the Windward will probably go to Newfoundland for the winter."

BANGED PIANO
FOR THREE DAYS

Lobodo, in Drunken Frenzy, Played on the Instrument Till His Hands Bled.

REFUSED TO EAT OR SLEEP

With swollen hands and finger tips bruised almost to the point of bleeding from playing a piano incessantly for three days and nights, Joseph Lobodo was a prisoner in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day, charged with intoxication, and was held to sober up.

Lobodo, who is a machinist, living at No. 4 Kent avenue, went to an installation house three days ago, bought a piano and hired three negroes to take it home for him. The firm from which he bought the instrument was willing to deliver it on the following day, but he couldn't wait.

Lobodo attacked it as soon as the negroes set it down. He doesn't know one note of music from the other, but he declared he was going to outdo his countryman, Padetewaki. After several hours of banging on the instrument his wife asked him to cease, but he would not. The man seemed to be in a frenzy of ecstasy over the discordant notes.

Bedtime came and he was still at it. He had eaten no supper, saying he couldn't spare the time. He kept the racket up all night. His wife and two young children got no sleep. Breakfast, dinner and supper were put on the table for him, but he wouldn't leave the piano. He manufactured names for the notes, saying he was a great musician.

All day and all night again the racket continued. The neighbors had given up his door in protest as hard as he banged the piano, but he went on with nerve-racking work as complacently as ever, paying no attention. When his hands got too sore for further use he compelled his wife to pull the piano over to the bed, and there he sat and pounded it with his bare feet.

Having satisfied himself that he was a genius, he went out last night and, liquored up, having heard that great geniuses needed powerful stimulants. Meanwhile the neighbors, who had given up all hope of peace in the house, had made several trips to the police station and entered complaints, and Lobodo was arrested on the doorstep, unconscious from whiskey and "music."

"I WAS NOT INSANE," SAYS
DR. DEDRICK, ARCTIC EXILE.

Man Who Spent Year Alone Among Esquimaux Suffered Much, but Is Well.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 18.—Dr. Diederick when asked to make a statement as to his relations with Peary and his experience during the year he spent alone felled from the expedition, said:

"I do not feel that it would be just to Peary and the club for me to make a statement at present. Such a statement might detract from the interest in Peary's account of his explorations, which is of more importance than anything I could say. I had differences with Peary, but felt it my duty as a physician to remain in the North and look after the men of the expedition even though I was banished from the camp."

"When I reach New York and find who was the author of the rumors that I was insane or of unsound mind during the time I spent in the North I will give a detailed statement refuting the rumors in full."

"It is Peary's place and not mine to say where I was taken on board the Windward. I could, but will not, give an account of the hardships I met with when separated from the expedition."

"This is the first statement I have made to any one. I have not even sent to my wife any word about the trouble with Peary, and the newspaper reports heretofore published are untrue."

Dr. Diederick says he is enjoying good health. He shows plainly, however, the effects of the sufferings he has endured.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, Sept. 18.—This wasn't the most pleasant day one could imagine, but one of the best cards of the meeting was offered, and the attraction was enough to draw out more than the usual number of rainy-day regulars.

The Speculation Stakes was the single fixture, but it was not by any means the most interesting event of the afternoon. The sixth race, which had Zoroaster, Runnells, Roxane, Sliphthrift and others entered, was one race that promised a much better contest than the stake, which was a selling affair and had rather a cheap class of entries. Another good race was the Handicap, with Sombrero, Caruncle, St. Finnan, Belle of Troy and others engaged.

It was no wonder, therefore, that the crowd braved the mists that rolled in from the East to soaked one's clothes worse than a driving rain. It had no effect on the track, however, and the going was good and fast when the horses were sent to the post in the opening dash. There was quite a number of scratches simply on account of the weather.

In the first race Setauket ran in the name and colors of the Lakewood Stable, with colors of green, red sash and cap. Diligent inquiry as to the identity of the Lakewood Stable revealed that Setauket is owned by E. E. Smathers, the trotting man, who has achieved many victories this year for his heavy wagers on the trotters.

CLOSE GUARD ON THE PRESIDENT.

Unusual Precautions Being Taken to Prevent Mishap on Western Trip.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 18.—The most extraordinary precautions will be taken to prevent any injury or mishap to President Roosevelt during the Western trip which he begins to-morrow.

It is plain that the President is alive to the risk which one in his position runs at the hands of cranks or monomaniacs. Recent despatches from Chicago indicating sudden activity on the part of the Anarchists in that city have added to his realization of his danger, and as a result he has consented to the unusual efforts now being made to insure his safety.

Special Guard With Him.

He will, accordingly, be surrounded by a special guard of detectives, and at every place he stops the police arrangements will be complete against any contingency.

Promiscuous handshaking and railway station receptions will be abandoned and President Roosevelt will be guided by his hosts in the various cities as to his movements.

The President will leave here on the Sylph to-morrow morning about 9:30 o'clock accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, who will go with him to New York City.

He will reach New York shortly before noon, and, according to his plans, leave for the West in a few hours.

Secretary Cortelyou, Assistant Secretary Losh and a force of White House stenographers and messengers will go with him.

ANARCHISTS NAMED TO MEET ROOSEVELT?

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Ephraim Philip Rosenthal, Secretary of the Roseman Reception Committee, who has been spoken of as an "Ideal Anarchist" and a "philosophical Anarchist," has resigned from the committee. Mr. Rosenthal was said to hold views similar to those of Prof. Triggs.

Rosenthal is said to have taken an active interest in the Emma Goldman case and Abraham Isaak case when they were arrested in the anti-Anarchist crusade following the assassination of President McKinley.

Mr. Rosenthal when given refused to answer a question as to whether he held any views approaching anarchy. He was, however, a member of the committee. Mr. Rosenthal in the presence of a number of detectives in Capt. Cullen's office openly declared that he was an Anarchist shortly after Isaak was arrested. He represented the "reds" arrested shortly after McKinley's assassination.

man, of Boston, and paid the salary out of his own pocket. Col. Monroe is not as wary in Mr. Emmet's case. Alderman Marks asked if the Commissioner proposed giving the place to a local engineer.

"I hardly think it fair," said Col. Monroe, "to ask that question. I may say, however, that no engineer would be of any service to the Department unless he resides in New York City and has a knowledge of its water system."

Roll-called showed sixty-three affirmative votes. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment has already signified its readiness to find the money to pay the engineer.

BODY OF YOUNG WOMAN BOUND AND WEIGHTED IS FOUND IN A CANAL.

It Was Only a Short Time in the Water When Found by an Express Driver, Where It Had Evidently Been Cast to Conceal a Brutal Murder.

The Features Are Pretty, the Hair a Light Blonde—A Great Wound in the Abdomen Caused the Death of the Unfortunate Woman.

The body of a beautiful young woman, weighted down with heavy chains, was taken from Morris Canal, near Jersey City, to-day and removed to Spier's Morgue.

The body had apparently been in the water only a few hours, and on the left side of the abdomen was a wound which, caused her death.

The police of Jersey City and Kearny Township are both making rigid investigation.

EXPRESS DRIVER'S DISCOVERY.

John F. Keller, driver for Brown's Express Company, in Newark, made the gruesome discovery.

He was driving from Newark to Jersey City along Communipaw avenue. When half way between Hackensack and Passaic River bridges he noticed what appeared to be a head bobbing about on the surface of the Morris Canal.

He left his wagon and waded into the canal and found the body. It was naked and lying face downward.

Long blond hair hung about the shoulders. The face was pretty.

BODY WEIGHTED DOWN.

As Keller attempted to drag the body toward him he discovered it was weighted down. A strap was tied about the waist and at its end was a twenty-pound carriage weight.

Keller hauled the body ashore and upon arriving in Jersey City notified the police.

The body is that of a young woman of evident refinement. She was between eighteen and twenty years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, with a wealth of blond hair.

On the left side of the abdomen was a long incised wound.

A CLEAR CASE OF MURDER.

Public Prosecutor Irwin visited the Morgue late in the afternoon and made arrangements to have the body photographed.

"It is a clear case of murder to me," he said, "the poor girl was stabbed in the abdomen and beaten on the head. Her murderer tied the weight about her body and threw her into the canal."

While looking over the weight which had been tied about the girl's body, Mr. Irwin came upon what may prove to be an important clue. On the bottom of the weight was stamped "Covert Manufacturing Company."

On the right side of the head, beneath the thick blonde hair, was found a contused wound of some extent. The flesh about it was swollen, showing that the wound was not made after death.

She had worn an upper set of false teeth. The teeth were missing.

The strap and weight found on the body had evidently been taken from a carriage. The strap was of good quality.

Chief of Police Murphy, after examining the body carefully, said:

"The girl's body was evidently brought to the canal and thrown in last night."

"The wound in the abdomen evidently caused death. I do not think the girl belonged in Jersey City. I think it more probable that she came from Newark."

Murphy put special men out on the case. The police of Newark and Kearney have a dozen men already working to clear up the mystery.

FAKE MASON IN COURT.

He Had Sold Fake Theatre Tickets and Was Held.

Joseph E. Dennett, thirty-six years old, of No. 311 East Fourteenth street, was arraigned in the Harlem Court this afternoon before Magistrate Crane, charged with selling "fake" theatre passes to Max Auerbach.

Sol Manheimer, business manager of the Herald Square Theatre, appeared as complainant and told the Magistrate that 4,000 of the "fake" passes had been sold or given away.

When arraigned Dennett wore a Masonic pin. Magistrate Crane, who is a member of the order, asked him if he was a Mason. He replied that he was. Then the Magistrate asked questions which Dennett did not understand. One of them was before Magistrate Crane, charged with selling "fake" theatre passes to Max Auerbach.

Dennett admitted he was not a member of the order. The pin was confiscated. Dennett was held in $500 bail for trial.
